NO TIME FOR PREJUDICE

Plainly, American business and industry is being tossed on the horns of a dilemma. It is going to be damned by an administration dedicated to business-baiting for not rushing into production of national defense needs if the public grows alarmed over a lag; if it were to rush into expanded production, as it did in the World War, with similarly costly results afterward in the form of a collapsed boom, it would be damned for that, too.

Briefly, what the United States must do to make itself a match for the strongest opponent it might have to face in an era of aggression and provoking is to produce approximately as much "materiel" in two or three years as Germany produced in seven years of concentrated effort. Perhaps it will not be granted even two years or one year, a possibility lately mentioned by Secretary of Navy Knox. Circumstances of a crisis are visible in the situation growing out of Germany's successful onslaught.

The nub of the delays in producing war equipment, aside from those which are due wholly to the physical impossibility of building plants and tools, is a clash of opinion between government and businessmen over what constitutes equitable financial arrangements. Businessmen, being trustees of capital, necessarily must think of their obligation in that respect. To the extent that government does not command their confidence in performance of the obligation, friction is generated.

Unfortunately, the business-baiting and economic "reform" policies of the Roosevelt administration have not created an atmosphere of common interest in which production problems and financial problems can be tackled without a certain amount of distrust. The era of bad will in which a government dependent on private enterprise chose to undermine the prestige and interests of private enterprise obviously cannot be prolonged, yet the prejudices it generated are hard. It is the patriotic duty of every politician, every businessman, every laboring man, to dispose of them as quickly as possible; they face a common danger.

AUTUMN'S DESCENT

An inquiring soul, sensitive to weather as well as war news, not to mention goldenrod pollen, might wonder whether autumn's premature descent in Ohio is an omen.

To all intents and purposes the first anniversary of the newest European explosion finds weather more suitable to the end of September than the end of August. The leaves on the poplars are yellow and beginning to drop. The starlings are flying back to town each evening. Lawns are baked and crisp, needing watering more than mowing. The countryside has the appearance of having passed the peak of maturity, like a fiftyish man with a trace of gray in his whiskers. Baseball fans are beginning to talk about pennants and world series tickets, proof that even these unsuspicious humans have been caught off base by the untimeliness of the weather.

Of course, mere mortals may not know whether the same thing is happening abroad. Weather news is one of the precious munitions of the conflict churning the dirt and water of the channel area and is not given away any more. It does seem worth mentioning that Dover lies almost a thousand miles north of the southern tip of Lake Erie; any condition in Ohio's latitude which might be accentuated a thousand miles to the north and thereafter duplicated three thousand miles to the east would close down the war for the winter prematurely. Looking further for traces of an omen, it may be a clue that the Churchill river in Saskatchewan and Manitoba lies in approximately the same latitude as Dover. Scouts will be dispatched forthwith to establish a weather station on the Churchill river to determine if Ohio's weather is related in any way to the hope of autumn's premature descent abroad.

THAT 'UNDECIDED' VOTER

As often as not, the only recognizable individual in the new game of surveying public opinion is the fellow who says, "I haven't any opinion to be surveyed." Kindred spirits often wonder where the surveyors find those paragons of decisiveness who have made up their minds about everything from the merits of beetle nuts to application of the Monroe doctrine.

Coming into attention at the moment is the undecided voter, the one who doesn't know yet whether he is going to vote for Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Wilkie. In every area where he constitutes 10 percent or more of the population, he is the man of the hour. A 10 percent shift of votes would squelch, possibly forever, the doctrine of the indispensable man promulgated by Mr. Roosevelt.

One thing about the undecided voter is too evident to be challenged. He is, A. W. O. L. from Mr. Roosevelt's bone-crushing popular majority of 1936. He is, in brief, open to conviction about Mr. Wilkie—and by Mr. Wilkie. This is a fact of the utmost political importance, because it means that at last the thing which Republicans despaired of doing is taking care of itself. Voters are losing their personal loyalty to Mr. Roosevelt, a loyalty which transcended devotion to ideals of government, giving its recipient free rein to proceed in any direction he chose. Belief that his personal strength among voters was sufficient to carry him and the New Deal to another victory simply by blanketing Mr. Wilkie and his philosophy was behind the stage-managed movement to "draft" Mr. Roosevelt for a third term. Loss of as much as 10 percent of the 1936 majority by the "indecision" route would be fatal to this strategy.

THAT LINGERING SMELL

Those who cringe at the disagreeable thought of the party in power loading relief rolls in an election year and who wish Wendell Wilkie wouldn't say anything out of consideration for their finer sensibilities should recall:

That evidence placed in the record by congressional investigation indicated plainly the party in power has succumbed in the past to the temptation to win gratitude and influence voters by playing politics with relief rolls.

That this evidence, combined with the personal resentment of politicians who resented such abuses in the handling of public money, produced the first Hatch act which was nothing more or less than a trap set to catch future offenders.

That the trap will be effectual only to the extent that attempts to step over it and around it are blocked by the vigilance of members of the minority party. It may be true, as WPA has declared in answer to Mr. Wilkie's charge of funny business, that fall enrollment on federal relief rolls will have nothing whatever to do with the political campaign. But the burden of proof, under the circumstances, rests on the party in power. On the basis of past performance, there is good reason for the minority party and the public at large to be suspicious of repetition of the misdeeds of former years.

FROM THE NEWS FILES

FORTY YEARS AGO

(Issue of August 27, 1900)

Yesterday afternoon as H. Cohen and E. Greenberger and family were driving in a surrey on E. Sixth st., the horse stumbled and fell, breaking a shaft and the harness. The horse was not injured. The rig was the property of Mr. Cohen.

Misses Elsie and Lena Fawcett of this city are spending a few days with friends in Wellsville.

D. E. Mather of Depot st. continues to improve after a recent accident. He was able to be in his store on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Ella Walker, who has been seriously ill at her home on E. Seventh st., is somewhat improved.

Miss Grace Boone returned to Massillon this morning after a visit with her father, Charles Boone, of Garfield ave.

The public school at Canfield opened today after the usual summer vacation. The normal college opened the fall term last Tuesday.

Rev. Robert Eccles, former pastor of the Baptist church, will make a visit to Salem some time soon.

The young ladies of St. Paul's Catholic church will give a lawn fete Wednesday evening at the home of W. H. Kelly on Depot st.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

(Issue of August 27, 1910)

Word has been received here of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bowman of Cleveland early Thursday morning. Mrs. Bowman is the daughter of Mrs. J. T. Brooks of this city.

Miss Dorothy Deming of Lincoln ave., assisted by Mr. and Mrs. G. Ramsden Deming, gave a barn dance at the home of the latter, Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Mildred Hogg of Pittsburgh. The festivities of Japanese lanterns, masses of summer flowers and use of college pennants, bunting and flags transformed the barn. Music was furnished by a mandolin club. A buffet lunch was served during the intermission. Out of town guests included Mrs. Walter Burchinell and Robert Modisette of Pittsburgh, and James and John McSweeney of Wooster.

Mrs. R. A. Montgomery and daughter Nell went to Salineville Thursday to visit at the home of her father for a few days.

The Misses Edith Smith and Myrtle Windle, who have been in Oberlin on business for a few days, arrived in the city Thursday evening.

Misses Ray Heckert and Natalie Sharpnack of Fair st. are in Lisbon for the remainder of the week as guests of Mrs. S. B. Todd.

Chief of Police Charles Cook left Thursday for a week's vacation which he will spend at Erie, Pa., and Niagara Falls, N. Y.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

(Issue of August 27, 1920)

Mr. and Mrs. William Kaminsky and family and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leaf are enjoying their vacation at Niagara Falls.

Honoring her sister, Mrs. Martin Schuler of Clairton, Pa., Mrs. Earl Rinker gave a party at the home of her mother, Mrs. Frank Edwick, of Garfield ave. The color scheme was carried out in pink and white appointments. The afternoon was spent in a social manner.

Herman Reeves and Ralph Herbert returned Tuesday evening from a several months trip to St. Louis, Mo., Belleville, and Quincy, Ill., and Denver, Colo.

The S. H. S. football team will meet tonight at the Presbyterian church parish house to make final arrangements for the camping trip.

The Hemmeter store employees enjoyed a corn and wiener roast at the Country club last evening. The evening was spent boating and dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Taylor and son William of Jamestown, N. Y., are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Atchison of Cleveland ave. They are traveling by auto and are enroute to Long Beach, Calif., to make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Thompson, Miss Ruth Hoewischer and Miss Mona McArthur will leave Sunday by auto for Columbus to attend the state fair.

William Robusch returned from Pittsburgh yesterday where he has been attending the Pittsburgh academy.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, August 28

A VERY lively and enterprising day, with the forces and faculties keyed up to some worthwhile achievements, is read from the prevailing astral operations. The mentality will be disposed to be keen, alert and aggressive as well as being sound, purposeful and dependable, even though prone to be attracted by creative and expansive objectives of major proportions. In very determined attack the support of superiors, employers or those in power is assured.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of excellent opportunity for expansion and growth, especially where new ideas and projects of major importance are practically developed and aggressively attacked. This energetic and strenuous personal initiative may prove amply convincing to employers, superiors or those whose cooperation for promotion and development is essential. Group action is destined to be definite and decisive, particularly where social, humanitarian or even political issues are at stake.

A child born on this day should be energetic, enterprising, forceful and resourceful, attaining place and prestige by its personal initiative.

Great Britain always wins the last battle, she says, but never gets reckless enough in anticipation to forecast a definite date for the event.

OUR READERS

REFUTES DAVEY CLAIMS

Editor, The News:

For several days a Salem Old Age pensioner has been soliciting names on a paper, headed with a pledge to vote and work for election of Martin L. Davey for governor.

If he is not paid to do the work he is probably not violating pension rules, but when he presented the paper to me, he contended that Gov. Bricker cut the pensions and raised his own salary a thousand dollars.

Any intelligent person knows that no governor or other executive can possibly raise his own salary. That right is vested in the State Legislature; the governor can only approve, veto, or ignore the act, similar to authority of our president or our mayor.

As to charge of cutting pensions, Davey advertisement circulated in Salem accuses Gov. Bricker of chiseling on old age pensions, relief, unemployment insurance and labor. When Davey talks of chiseling he can look back to 1938 when John Taylor and other members of the State Senate Hatch committee uncovered official records of the John Nolan Truckless Trucking Co., that showed they were chiseling at the rate of $250,000 a year from the old age pensioners, until the court declared the contract illegal and canceled it.

Incidentally there are suits now pending in court to recover over one and a quarter million dollars from the former Davey outfit, for excessive price paid to these firms. Records show that the state is now buying for a third less per ton, and then Davey accuses Bricker of chiseling.

Records show that aid for the aged administration under Bricker costs about 70% of what it did under Davey's administration. Average total monthly pension payments under Bricker are about $750,000 higher than under Davey administration.

At present there are 122,248 on the pension roll while the highest figure during Davey's administration was 111,183, with a little higher monthly average rate per pensioner than under Davey, under Bricker. Checks come on time, due largely to finance system of operating state government. Under Davey irregularity of checks was the rule, not the exception. It is a significant fact that Gov. Bricker in his speeches stresses the necessity of better citizenship, and urges a revival of interest in public affairs.

Was Davey's 4 years clean enough to stand that kind of inspection? Bricker drove the racketeers out of the state house, and as official records show he is doing a good job of keeping them out, he certainly is deserving of loyal support.

Do You Read On The Train?

Movies, Other Eye "Workers" Are Discussed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

HOW MUCH harm is done to the eyes by reading on trains, airplanes, automobiles or by any kind of flickering light? How much harm is done by reading in dim light, or by long sessions at the movies?

No permanent harm, all but the most fussy oculists will agree. True, it requires more energy and strain than reading in a steady light. If you walk over a rough road, up hill and down, over stones and in and out of holes, you are more tired than covering the same distance on the level. But you do not do any permanent damage to your legs.

No Permanent Damage
So flickering lights cause more and more rapid muscular adjustments and the procedure tires your eyes. But it doesn't "ruin" them, as parents are apt to say in warnings. It does no permanent damage. Headaches may result, and generally bodily fatigue, and heavy, burning feelings of the eyes.

For those who have visual defects such attempts may have more serious consequences. Near-sighted persons, particularly under 30, when the eyeball is soft, may put such a muscular strain on the eyeball as to result in increased and permanent damage. This applies also to people with a lack of proper muscular balance. This does not mean those with a definite squint, but simply so much muscle weakness that the eyes can be thrown off balance by excessive muscular work and strain.

The minimum amount of illumination that is supposed to be necessary and sufficient for reading is placed at 10 foot-candles. Any electric light and any reasonable amount of daylight will furnish this.

The movies present a special condition. With modern technique the amount of flicker in a movie is almost nil. The light also is steady and sufficient. The introduction of talkies has also made an improvement. The characters most of the time in modern talkies don't move around as much as they used to in the movies. This does not apply, of course, to the moments when they are falling over cliffs, etc. But in most situations they must stand still while delivering their speeches in order to get the idea over. Then in the old days your eyes had to endure changes from a brightly illuminated scene to a dark chart with the legend on it. This has been eliminated by the talkies. The consequence is that experts say the movies are the least straining of all methods of using the eyes. I know people who can go to the movies for hours, but invariably have a headache if they read fifty pages of print.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

Judith turned on the lights when the dishes were finished and curled up on the davenport. She lay there for a long time shivering. She wondered if she would ever get out of the apartment to face the fact that she had dared try that experiment. It was too dangerous. She remembered her father's words when he told her she and Tex were to be married.

"Always remember this, my girl. Marriage is a give-and-take game. You never leave your husband—unless you mean it."

Finally she ended up crying herself to sleep in complete futility. It was getting daylight when Judith woke. She could not remember for a moment where she was. Then she slipped into the bed. Tex appeared to be sleeping peacefully. She finally got into her bed.

Tex was up before Judith next morning. She could hear him clatter around in the kitchen. Then she heard coffee. She lay there and listened. How to face him? What to do?

"Breakfast is ready," Tex yelled. She came out into the kitchen. He was struggling with the coffee. "I burned one batch. How many chickens do you manage?"

"Here I'll do it," she said. She set the table, cut the grapefruit.

"Do you want eggs?" she asked. "No thanks."

Tex did not meet her eyes as they sat down. She handed him his coffee but he was deep in the morning paper.

"I've got to go out to the field this morning to see Dudley again," Tex said. "I'll be back early tonight."

"Do you want dinner here?" "No. Don't think so. May push off early." Then he added with elaborate carelessness:

"Just just as well get going. Night is booked fairly light to Chicago. I may have to wait over there to get to the coast."

Judith made one last effort. "I can't I could go with you."

Tex went back to his paper, but his voice was conciliatory. "It's short notice for you. We may be out there in the spring."

Judith did not comment.

"Better pack my bag while I'm here. You can drive me over." Before he left, he kissed her. "Now be a good girl. I'd like to take you, but the way things are it's impossible. Besides, Doc thinks I should get away. I don't want to get in for anything social."

Judith sent him away with a smile. There wasn't anything else to do. When the apartment was quiet, she went into the bedroom, began sorting shirts and handkerchiefs. She got out Tex's airplane bag and packed it. The day seemed endless. She had to go to any place. Besides she was not sure when he'd get back. Judith went over the bills and her check book. While she was at the desk, Tex came back. He was in a great hurry.

"I want to get the four o'clock," he said. "How much money will you need?"

"There are some bills—and the rent."

Tex counted out some money, a generous amount.

"You better get your winter clothes while I'm away. Have a good time. Then, as an afterthought he added, "Why don't you go out to Detroit?"

Judith hesitated an instant. "Not this time, Tex."

On the way to the airport, Almes tried his best to be pleasant. His conscience hurt him. When Tex was doing something he shouldn't, he was always especially nice.

"I'll be at the Ambassador. Dudley fixed that up. I can get in some swimming, too."

"Not with your head the way it is," Judith protested.

"Oh, I won't try any diving." At the airport, Tex told Judith not to wait. "I might not get out on the four o'clock if she's full. You might just as well run along. Then you can go to a show."

As Tex was getting his bag out, Judith saw Dudley's car drive up. Tex seemed suddenly in a great hurry. But in spite of his haste, Dudley came up to speak to them.

"On your way?" he asked. Tex nodded. He shook hands with Judith. "Haven't seen you since our dinner." He turned to his chauffeur: "Get Mrs. Almes' bag out of the car, Clark."

It was Judith who finally spoke. "I'm not going, Mr. Dudley."

Tex's face was crimson under the tan. Dudley nodded curtly, sent his chauffeur on.

"Take care of yourself, Tex. Report to our west coast doctor when you land." He shook hands with Judith. "I'll phone you and we'll have dinner one night while Tex is away."

Then Dudley left them together. Tex kissed Judith good bye hurriedly. He found it uncomfortable to bear the reproach in her eyes.

"I'll write, honey. Wire me if you need anything."

Then he disappeared into the waiting room.

Tex Almes had been gone a week, the longest Judith had ever spent, when Michael Dudley telephoned.

"I've been down south. Had to go to Baltimore and Ft. Lauderdale," he explained. "How about dinner tonight?"

Judith was grateful to hear his voice, eager for somebody to talk to.

"I'm at the field. I'll pick you up about five-thirty. Then you won't have to come over by train. Put on your best clothes. This is to be a real party. We can drop by my apartment, and I'll dress."

The day after Tex left, Judith had bought a new dinner dress. It was a slim black affair, very plain, but well cut. There was a matching black jacket which went with it.

Judith dressed, taking great pains with her lovely black hair. It was done in curls over her head, swept off her ears.

She made some cocktails, laid out her gloves and an evening bag Tex had brought her from Miami once when he felt especially flush.

Tex! She turned away from the mirror. There had been an airmail letter that day, written in his usual terse style. Tex hated to write letters. But he was having a grand time, he wrote, swimming every day. His head was better, and he wished she'd come with him. The note was a great comfort to Judith. She felt like celebrating.

When Dudley finally rang the bell Judith was in quite a flutter, like a girl at her first party. Her cheeks were flushed, her eyes shining, as he greeted, "You look grand. What do you hear from Tex?"

Dudley gave no sign that he might suspect she and Tex were surely drifting apart.

"He's having a grand time," says he feels in the pink!"

"Good! Well, here's to Tex!" he toasted with sincere emphasis.

Dudley had never been in the Almes apartment before. He liked its simplicity, neatness, and the clever way in which Judith had blended yellows and greens.

Dudley smiled. "I never imagined you were so domestic. Do you mean to tell me you can cook?"

"Of course, I'll prove it to you when Tex gets back."

The drive over to Manhattan was pleasant. Dudley listened idly while Judith told her about his boyhood in Idaho. . . . He now had an apartment on Park Avenue. They drove up Fifth Avenue, just behind the heavy rush-hour crowd. Lighted windows offered enchanting splashes of color.

Judith and Tex had never been in Dudley's apartment. The car pulled up before one of those quiet, expensive apartment dwellings of the 70's. The elevator itself radiated luxury. Dudley's man-of-all-work opened the door of the apartment.

There was a small foyer, beyond a huge living room. It commanded a fine view of the avenue, up and down town.

"Make yourself at home, Judith. Jim will bring you a cocktail. I've some new phonograph records. Try them."

He went on to dress. Left alone, Judith looked about her with keen pleasure.

It was a fine room, lined with books. It looked lived in. Nothing of the interior decorator here. There were many rich, dark oriental rugs, comfortable chairs. Judith saw an old wooden propeller over in the corner, one blade splintered. There was a date on it, 1934. Judith wondered whether it was off one of Dudley's planes.

She stood for a long time at the big windows. The lights on the cars far below gleamed like glow-worms in the deep blue twilight.

Judith did not realize how long she had stood there until Dudley joined her at the windows. He looked very handsome in his dinner coat.

"Nice view, isn't it?"

"Lovely."

"To me twilight is perfection. How blue the light was tonight." For it had turned dark while Judith stood there.

"What about that 'prop' over in the corner?" Judith asked.

"My last crack-up. Got a nice banging up myself. I keep it there just as a reminder to me that a pilot must 'keep his nose down.' I got smart and see what happened? Maybe that prop is the reason our lines haven't had a crack-up in seven years."

"What happened?"

"I got caught in a fog and didn't have a radio. Thought I could make the airport. I didn't."

He put his hand on her arm and drew her over to the prop.

"See those names scratched on it? The gang amused themselves by autographing it while I was convalescing. Here's Eddie Stinson's and Speed Holman's—old timers. They're gone now. And Freddie Lund's and Lee Miles'. Here's Marvel Crosson's. She was killed in the first woman's derby. And Amelia's. . . . Not so many of them left, Judith. And here's Doug Davis'."

Judith traced the famous signatures. Some of them she had known. All of them had been Tex's friends.

"Here's Tex's!" she cried suddenly.

"Yes, he was just a kid, then. Came to see me with Jimmie Doolittle. You'll find his there, too. Jimmie brought Tex to see me once—in St. Louis. Your future husband was just a school kid crazy about flying, almost as tall as he is today. I remembered him because he was such a handsome boy and skinny as a rail."

"I'd like to have known him then," Judith said.

"No, I think not. He wasn't interested in anything but flying. Very serious-minded."

Judith laughed at such a description of her husband.

"Tex had something even then. He certainly has made a great flier. He has courage. I never hesitate to trust him with any ship."

Judith had found Tex's boyish signature scratched on the old "prop," a vastly different one than the scrawl which he used today for his autograph.

Where Nine Died in Army Plane Crash

A group of government inspectors search through the ruins of the army bomber which crashed forty-three miles east of Denver, Colo., killing its crew of two officers and seven enlisted men. The plane, on night bombing practice, was demolished when the pilot nearly collided with a sister-ship, and was blown to bits by its own bomb cargo.

Skilled Aircraft Workers Are Sought

The manager of the Sixth U. S. Civil Service district office in Cincinnati, has announced that there is a scarcity of applicants for certain highly skilled and technical occupations in the air corps at Wright Field, Dayton.

He explained that this is an unusual condition that has arisen because of the expansion of military agencies in connection with the nation's preparedness program. He emphasized, however, that only persons with technical training in certain lines are needed; there is no shortage of clerical workers, laborers, or workmen experienced in the more common types of trades and skilled work.

The positions for which there is a shortage of applicants are: Aircraft armament mechanic, $1860 a year; aircraft engine test operator, $1860 a year; aircraft propeller mechanic, $1860 a year; aircraft electricians, $1860 to $2000 a year; aircraft mechanics, $1680 to $2600 a year; aircraft engine mechanics, $1680 to $2000 a year; and photographic reproducer helpers, $1320 a year.

Full information and the proper application forms for these examinations can be obtained from the secretary, board of U. S. Civil Service examiners, at the post office.

Display Of Flower Hats Is Garden Club Feature

An interesting and novel display of flower hats made by the members featured a meeting of the Garden club at the home of Mrs. L. P. Koenreich, E. Pershing st., Monday afternoon.

The exhibit followed an account by Mrs. H. C. Thomson of a flower show and garden tour which she attended in March at Sarasota, Fla.

Family Holds Reunion At North Benton

The 31st annual Kirkbride family reunion held Saturday at the Presbyterian church in North Benton attracted 50 relatives from New Wilmington, Erie, and Beaver, Pa., Cleveland, Youngstown, North Benton, Salem, Winona and Alliance.

The oldest member present was John Kirkbride of Deerfield who will celebrate his 91st birthday in December and the youngest, his great granddaughter, Mary Joanne Williamson, six-weeks-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Williamson of Akron.

A picnic dinner was enjoyed, followed by a business meeting and short musical program.

Officers for the 1941 reunion, which will be held the fourth Saturday in August at the home of Walter Dunn, Winona, include: President, Harry Dunn of Alliance; vice president, John Montgomery of Deerfield; secretary, Mrs. Donald Mayhew of R. D. Salem; treasurer, Miss Margaret Kirkbride of Salem.

Songs by Junior Hammond and Peggy June Taylor of North Benton entertained during the informal afternoon.

Hold Annual Reunion At Teegarden

About 50 friends and relatives attended the Lease, Barger and Meehan families' reunion at Teegarden Sunday, opening with a basket dinner at noon.

A report was given of events during the year when the death of one member, Mrs. Merton Warner of Teegarden rd., was recorded. Three births were also recorded, including a son to Mr. and Mrs. William Sommers, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Barnard and a son to Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lease. Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Sommers, married recently, provided the only wedding in the family since the last reunion.

Officers, re-elected, are: President, Joseph Barger of Lisbon; vice president, Philip Barger of Lisbon; secretary-treasurer, Miss Mary Lease of Lisbon.

The next reunion will be held the third Sunday in August, the place to be announced later.

Today's Pattern

MODERN ANTICIPATION ENSEMBLE
Pattern 4478

A long way from the drab, stay-at-home clothes of grandma's day is this modern anticipation outfit, Pattern 4478, by Anne Adams, is gay, young and becoming. That drawstring waistline does the magic trick! It lets the frock grow easily with your figure, it eliminates all bothersome hooks, snaps and buttons, and, together with the below-the-yoke shirring it creates concealing gathered fullness. The neckline is round or shaped to match the enchanting yoke, which may be in lace-edged self-fabric or light contrast. The straight-hanging jacket gives a final becoming touch—it's cut in the new longer length and is with or without sleeves.

Pattern 4478 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16, entire ensemble, takes 5 1/2 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

Three cheers for the ANNE ADAMS FALL and WINTER PATTERN BOOK—just off the press! It's right in key with the American spirit of freedom and individuality. in honor of Mrs. Anna Cain, a member, who will move to Wintersville soon. The honoree was given a handkerchief shower. The I. T. and the Climbing Crusaders Sunday school classes also held parties in the church basement in honor of Mrs. Cain.

Shipping Losses

Listed by London
LONDON, Aug. 27—Thirteen British, Allied and neutral merchant ships totaling 52,899 tons were sunk by the enemy during the week ending Aug. 18, the admiralty announced today.
The admiralty said "the enemy claims to have sunk 151,711 tons, or nearly three times the actual reported losses" for the period.
The total tonnage lost was slightly above the weekly average for the previous 49 weeks since the beginning of the war, the admiralty said.
Axis losses to Aug. 26 totalled approximately 1,187,000 tons, the admiralty reported. German losses were 923,000 tons and Italian 264-000.
Neutral shipping seized by "the enemy" amounting to 32,000 tons also has been sunk, the admiralty reported.
The German claim that a British destroyer of the Viscount class had been sunk was authoritatively denied.

Life Complicated In Berlin

Year of War Brings Many Restrictions

(Editor's Note: Next Sunday will mark the first anniversary of the European war. During this period many changes have come to life in Berlin. The following story, written for the Special News Service of The Associated Press and The Salem
News, gives you an interesting picture of what it means to live in the German capital today.)

BY ANGUS M. THUERMER

BERLIN—(correspondence of The Associated Press)—Nearly a year of war has put the check-rein on normal civilian life in Germany.
Restrictions necessary for the successful continuation of war activities pop out at you from the most unexpected corners.

First of all, there's that blackout.
Really most persons would feel sort of ashamed, and theatrical after spending 12 months in the evening dark—to have to step out under a brilliant street lamp.

Eyes have become so accustomed to struggling around in the dark that the business in phosphorescent buttons has dropped off to nil.

Then there is the taxi situation.
Woe betide you if you get into a taxi without an iron clad, double-barreled reason. Tired feet don't count. Rushing over to see a sick aunt might get you by—maybe.

Considering foods

Now considering foods in restaurants—there is caviar and vodka to be had. At caviar and vodka prices.

Corps reserve and then ordered to extended active duty for three years.
Salary of flying second lieutenants is $205.50 per month, with living quarters or $215.50 per month without living quarters furnished.

"All interested should visit the nearest army recruiting station and obtain particulars and application forms. If a young man can qualify, we will assure him early consideration. Here is a long-sought opportunity for air-minded men to realize their ambition", Colonel Talbott said.

we mean. That's without food tickets though, so its something to consider.

On the other hand if you are thinking of sitting down in a restaurant, or out on the sidewalk cafe and letting your phantasy room, ordering the way you did way back in '38, you've got another thought coming. But the good burger is broken in to the meat, butter, bread and what-have-you coupons.

And one more thing about the blackouts—if you're a second story man and get caught practicing your profession in the blackout—it's no hemstitch-a-banky for three months
—they make you a head shorter.

But on the whole the almost never failing Prussian ability to make things click keeps everybody smiling and every tummy full.

Uncle Sam's Canadian Talks Worry Rome-Berlin Brothers

By DEWITT MACKENZIE.

The Berlin-Rome brotherhood is taking a very sour and uncomplimentary view of Uncle Sam's dis-ussions with Canada regarding defense matters of mutual interest, and his conversations with England concerning the leasing of naval bases in the western hemisphere.

It would seem from the Fascist and Nazi press (which, as you know, is government controlled) that Sam is up to some sort of skulduggery whereby he hopes to gain at the expense of his friends and neighbors. He has, they say, imperialistic ambitions.

"Jumping On John Bull"

The intimation is that Uncle Sam is preparing to take advantage of John Bull's tough position and appropriate British territory. That is to say Sam is planning to jump on John with both feet while the latter is down.

The Italian press is the more vulgar on the subject of our taking advantage of England—perhaps having in mind to get some of its own back for President Roosevelt's historic rebuke to Italy when she entered the war just before France collapsed. F. D. R. declared that
"on this tenth day of June, 1940, the hand that held the dagger has struck it into the back of its neighbor."

The United States is charged with seeking to secure territory in the "break up" of the British empire, which the Axis powers assert is near. This includes control of Canada.

Anything having less basis of possibility than our annexation of Canada is hard to imagine.

I know Canadians pretty well, both in war and in peace. I've spent much time in Canada, and have studied her relations to the United States and the mother country.

Canadians Not Worried

There is no doubt in my mind that Canadians would fight with every available weapon to prevent annexation. However, they have no fear of any effort on our part to take them over. Personally I never have heard any responsible American suggest such a thing.

In this connection I have heard the question raised of whether any pact we made with Canada would ipso facto be a pact with England as well. The answer, in my view, is that England would have nothing to do with an American-Canadian agreement unless that agreement specifically made Britain a party to it.

Canada is a sovereign state and is not subordinate to the English government.

SACRAMENTO, Cal.—The California fish and game commission has ordered closed season on rabbit hunting in parts of four southern California counties—to protect quail. The commission hopes to end the practice of hunters "going out for rabbits but returning with a bag of quail."

Two ways to look at Good News

Way No. 1 is to examine the chart shown below. It shows the step up—based on a scientific test used by us and many of our competitors—in the anti-knock quality of Good Gulf and Gulf No-Nox. You won't need technical knowledge to see that these improvements are truly important... make a real difference in the performance of your car.

Way No. 2 is to actually try a tankful of either Good Gulf or Gulf No-Nox, as you prefer.
Right away, you'll discover that Good Gulf—now boosted to its all-time high—will make your engine run more smoothly... more quietly.
Or you'll find that Gulf No-Nox, which even before the step up was KNOCKPROOF under all normal driving conditions, is now truly a super-fuel! No-Nox will make your modern, high-compression engine purr like never before... will put new life into any car! NO REGU-LAR GASOLINE—NOT ONE—CAN COMPARE WITH GULF NO-NOX!

Chiseling The Unemployed Under Bricker

The Unemployment Insurance Law was passed under the Davey administration, in December 1936, to conform to the Federal law. It was intended to provide $15 a week for those who were temporarily unemployed,
through no fault of their own. Bricker chiseled them
down to $4.
$5, and $6 a week, sometimes as low as $1.50 or $2 a week. He has been inhuman.

Davey set up the vast machinery for the handling of unemployment insurance on a businesslike basis, and on the advice of insurance experts. So good a job was done in organizing this department under Davey, that Ohio was the only State in the Union that was ready to pay benefits on time.

Under Davey's administration, the employees were selected by Civil Service. The United States
Social Security Board provided $92,000.00 for the Civil Service examinations. Thousands of Ohio citizens paid their money in good faith to take these examinations.
The Social Security Board supervised this. The selections were made according to law.

The first thing Bricker did was to pass a "ripper" law to get immediate political control of the unemployment insurance program. He promptly fired hundreds of Civil Service employees, who had a right to the positions under the law, and who had the experience to do the work properly. He filled these places with Bricker politicians, irrespective of merit.

The present Governor has shown a brazen contempt for Civil Service laws and all other laws. His attitude seems to be that he personally owns the State government. If laws are in his way, he still rules with a ruthless hand.

But the worst thing about his high-handed mismanagement of unemployment insurance is his cruel and brutal attitude toward the helpless unemployed. This is a humanitarian law. It was intended to help people, and not grind them down, because they were unlucky enough to be out of work temporarily.

Davey left more than $125,000-000.00 in the Ohio Unemployment Insurance Fund in the United States Treasury. Bricker is piling up still more Ohio money by cheating the unemployed. Why leave all this Ohio money in Washington? It helps no Ohio people there. Let's be a little more generous with the unemployed.
Make the law humane and fair.

It will help Ohio merchants, landlords, doctors, dentists, etc.
But above all, it should be made to help, and not starve, the unemployed. Davey will make this law humane, and generous, and just.

BOWLERS PREPARING FOR ANNUAL CAMPAIGN

ORGANIZATION DATES SET FOR CITY CIRCUITS

Meetings of Leagues Are Scheduled This Week And Next

Echoes of tumbling ten pins in Salem bowling alleys are soon to be heard, it was indicated today in the announcement of plans for the organization of teams and leagues for the 1940-41 bowling season.

Organization meetings will be held this week and next, according to word from Secretary Bill Juergens of the Bowling Association, who explained that persons or organizations intending to sponsor teams should report at the meeting of the league in which they might be interested.

Anyone is welcome to attend the meeting, he added, extending invitations to new as well as old bowlers. It is hoped that the season can get off to a good start at least by Sept. 16, closing May 1, the official finale.

The leagues, dates and places of organization meetings are announced by Juergens as follows:

American and National leagues at Masonic temple Wednesday, the American at 7 p. m. and the National at 8.

Federal league at Masonic temple at 7:30 p. m. Friday.

Commercial and Quaker City leagues at Grate alleys Wednesday, Sept. 4.

Pastime league at Grate alleys 7:30 p. m. Friday, Sept. 6.

The Grate alleys, it was announced today, will open Sept. 2 for pre-league tune-ups.

Seek Berths On Ohio Golf Team

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27.—Fifty golfers teed off today seeking the eight places allotted to Ohio in the National Amateur tournament.

The 36-hole qualifying test found 34 competing at Cincinnati's Camargo club and 16 at Cleveland's Kilduff layout. The National tournament is slated for the winged foot course in Manaroneck, N. Y., Sept. 9-14.

Five players from Cincinnati and three from Cleveland will win qualifying positions. Shooting are such stars as Maurice J. McCarthy of Cincinnati, three-time Ohio champ; Billy Gilbert of Cincinnati and Ohio State university; John Wood of Cincinnati, former state inter-collegiate champ; and Eddie Meister of Cleveland, Yale's captain.

Fight Results

DETROIT—Pat Comiskey, 206, of Paterson, N. J., knocked out Johnny McCarthy, 195, of Chicago (2).

NEW ORLEANS—Pete Scialzo, 127½, of New York, N. B. A. featherweight champion, outpointed Jimmy Perrin, 126½, of New Orleans (10—non-title).

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ
NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—One of Ben Hogan's admirers figures that prior to the start of the P. G. A. tournament yesterday, Ben Hogan who has won $9,405 in purses this year, was paid off at the rate of $1.89 for every shot. Tony Canzone is doing a little light work in the gym, but he's promised he won't try another comeback. . . . The Tigers are growling about the American league schedule which gives the Indians four days' rest between two three-game series with Detroit.

Today's Guest Star
Nixon Denton, Cincinnati Times-Star, Jack Sutherland can't seem to remember that he no longer is coaching a college football team asked to describe the prospects of the Brooklyn Dodgers, he asserted they were far from bright.

The record of the series between the Western All-Stars and the National football league champs hardly justify the 6-2 odds being quoted on Green Bay for Thursday's tilt. Some of the smartest writers on the coast already are nominating the Texas Aggies as the eastern representative in the 1941 Rose Bowl game.

Add Look-alikes: Lester Patrick of the New York Hockey Rangers and Buck Shaw, Santa Clara football coach. . . . Carl Vayles would feel a lot better about his highly publicized William and Mary football team if he was a bit stronger on the flanks. . . . Larry French of the Cubs probably will be the next National league pitcher to crash the 20-victory circle, but not this season. . . . Old Mose Grove needs only eight more wins to make it 300 in the American league.

Another Far National
The National league, which has been winking off with a lot of the honors this year, has added another Jimmy Wilson's return to the box scores as an active player, gives the Reds the only father-and-son catching combination in the majors. . . . Young Robert is summing with the Reds as batting practice catcher.

Is Par Perfect Score In Golf?

HERSHEY, Pa., Aug. 27.—The professionals demonstrated again today that there's something wacky about par being the mythically perfect score in golf.

The field of 120 of the game's best shot makers moved into the second 18-hole qualifying round for the PGA championship, spraying a rain soaked, long and exacting course with birdies and eagles.

Dick Metz fashioned a 69. At 70 were Ralph Guldahl, Jug McSpaen, and Johnny Gibson, 29-year-old assistant pro from Chicago. At 71 were Jimmy Demaret, Jimmy Hines, Ky Laffoon and Paul Runyan.

Players surmised that 153 and more for the 36 holes of qualifying might put them out of the tournament by tonight. After that 34 players remain for the matches, including Defending Champion Henry Picard. Two men come down to the finals Sunday.

Presbyterians Capture Title

LISBON, Aug. 27.—The Presbyterians edged the Methodists, 11-9, Monday afternoon to win the Junior softball championship, retaining the title won last year. Each team won a game last Friday, resulting in the playoff Monday afternoon at the playgrounds. The Methodists took an 11-0 victory, and the Presbyterians came back to defeat the first round winners, 14-13.

Brinker and Williams hurried for the winners, with Campanelli doing the catching, while the battery for the losers was Chamberlain and Wetzel.

Following is the record of the Junior teams up to the playoff:

Team	Won	Lost
Presbyterian	5	0
Catholic	3	2
Methodists	3	2
Christians	1	4

League Leaders Look Ripe For Fall But It's A Hard Job To Perform This Late

By JUDSON BAILEY,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

It's a tough task to shake baseball's league leaders out of the tree-tops in August, even when they look ripe for a fall.

The Cleveland Indians, who once this season gained the American league lead by losing four straight, seemed in danger of dropping off their precarious perch in the throes of another four-game losing streak last weekend.

But they stopped it yesterday by edging out the Washington Senators 4-3 while both the second-place Detroit Tigers and third-place New York Yankees were kept idle by rain. As the result the Indians increased their advantage over the Tigers to three games and over the Yanks to six.

Meanwhile the Cincinnati Reds split a double bill with the Philadelphia Phillies without harming their 7½ game advantage in the National league because the Brooklyn Dodgers also were rained out. Carl Hubbell, who at 37 is working harder than a lot of baseball youngsters, made his third appearance in four days and saved the New York Giants a 10-5 verdict over the Chicago Cubs. New Yorkers manufactured 16 hits and clustered enough of them in the early innings to give Harry Gumbert an 8-1 lead. But he faltered and "Hub" pulled the Terrymen out, patching five shutout innings and getting credit for his 11th victory.

Another fine relief showing was that of Boston's Jim Bachy in helping the Red Sox to a 7-6 decision over the St. Louis Browns. He allowed only two hits in the last 6-2-3 innings. Manager Joe Cronin produced three runs with a double and a single.

The Boston Bees threw more water on the St. Louis Cardinals' conflagration by winning a tight game 3-1 with Rookie Nic Strincevich hurling five-hit ball.

THE GUMPS

CHAIN BOMBERS HIT AT LONDON

Blast Away at British Capital In Longest Raid of War

a half apart, and anti-aircraft guns opened fire at what were believed to be British bombers operating against Italian objectives.

The Germans in a new technique accounting for the record length of the London raid employed a force estimated at 50 planes which flew high over the capital at regular intervals singly or in small groups, chain fashion.

Some of the raiders, far above the balloon barrage, kept as high as 20,000 feet—almost four miles—and appeared as tiny silvery specks as anti-aircraft searchlights picked them out.

Keep Coming

They kept coming, approaching London from the south and circling over the metropolitan area and then departing, apparently only to appear later again in a scheduled interval.

Whistling bombs were dropped in one London area.

German bombers also spent one of their busiest nights of the war outside of London, attacking a coastline of over 500 miles from northeast to southeast England and along the south coast to southwest England and penetrating inland to the Midlands.

Air raid precaution officials considered the damage small in relation to the intensity and length of the raids, although property was destroyed and there were a number of casualties, some fatal.

Previous night raids have included simultaneous thrusts at widely scattered points, with each attack lasting only briefly.

Many observers thought the "chain raid" was executed for its nuisance value—to keep Londoners from sleeping and to hold up production.

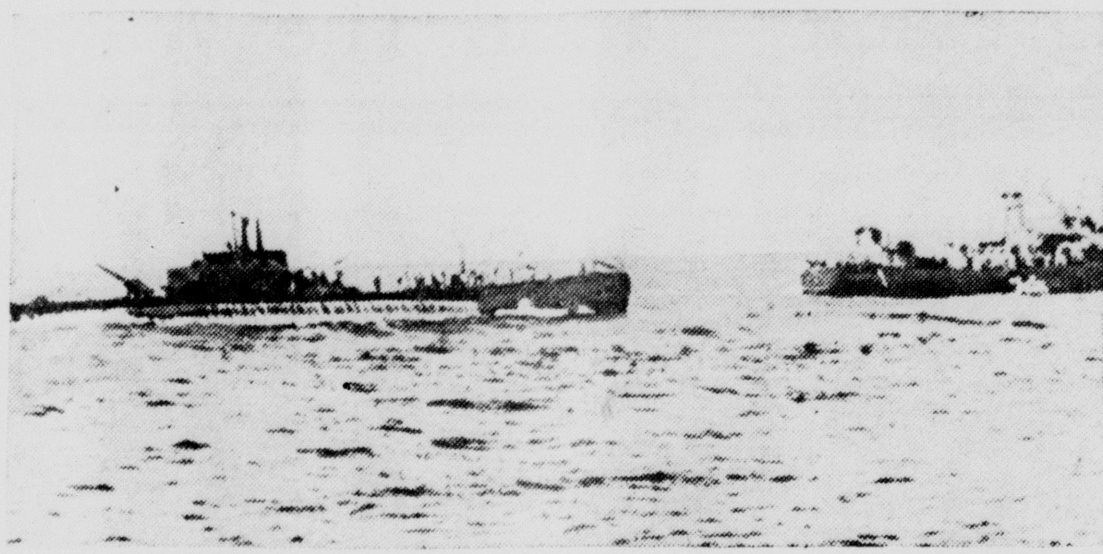

The all-clear signal was sounded about 3:40 a. m., slightly more than an even six hours after the first alarm. (Censorship prevents publication of exact times.) It was the third air raid of the day for London and the seventh since Saturday morning.

Spurs Training

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—President Roosevelt asked congress yesterday for an additional $53,000,000 to expand the office of education's program of vocational training in courses essential to defense industries.

The President also requested $20,000 for experiment stations in the bureau of mines to conduct investigations connected with defense.

Theatre Attractions

Bob Burns returns to the scene of his first triumph, the Big Smoky mountain country, for his latest film comedy, "Comin' Round the Mountain", which shows at the State Wednesday only.

A cast of favorites, known chiefly for their work on national radio programs, embraces his supporting players, including Jerry Colonna, Don Wilson, Pat (Uncle Ezra) Barrett, Harold (Gildersleeve) Peary, Bill (the Old Timer) Thompson, with Una Merkel, Richard Carle, William Demarest, Cliff Arquette and Brenda Fowler.

The plot of the picture is negligible and requires little or no explanation. The redeeming feature is the comedy performances by all members of the cast, who turn in a slightly less than second rate film into surprisingly good screen entertainment.

Concluding at the State tonight is "My Love Came Back" with Olivia de Havilland, Jeffrey Lynn, Charles Winninger, Spring Byington, Eddie Albert and Jane Wyman. At the Grand Wednesday only are: "Ladies Must Live", with Rosemary Lane, Wayne Morris, George Karna, Lee Patrick and George Reeves; and "Gangs of Chicago", story of a public enemy who operated within the law, featuring Lloyd Nolan, Barton MacLane, Ray Middleton, Astrid Allwyn and Lola Lane.

Salem, Ore., In Gala Mood; McNary Set For Notification

(By Associated Press)

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 27—The usual tranquility of this western Oregon farming city gave way today to bands and a visiting crowd expected to total over 50,000 persons gathered for Senator Charles L. McNary's acceptance of the Republican vice-presidential nomination.

The crowd began arriving early by train and automobile amid decorated streets. Hotels were filled to capacity and restaurants reported a "land office" business. Business men estimated that 80,000 persons were in the city, compared to the usual 30,000.

In contrast to the excitement that prevailed in the city, peace and quiet was still in order at Fir Cone, McNary's country home, where he has rested the past three days. He said he felt "fit as a fiddle."

The nominee planned conference with Rep. Joseph Martin, Republican national chairman; Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota and other party leaders in the forenoon.

The lanky Oregon senator, the second man in Oregon's history to gain a place on a national ticket, was expected to remain at Fir Cone until shortly before the start of the ceremony, five miles away at the state fairgrounds. The program starts at 4:30 p. m. (PST).

McNary said several days ago he would remain at the fairgrounds and shake hands "all night if necessary."

Arrangements have been made by the fairgrounds to handle a crowd of from 50,000 to 75,000 persons.

First Oregonian on a national ticket was General Joseph Lane, who won the Democratic nomination for vice president in 1860.

Will Take Leave

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27—Franklin Waltman, director of publicity for the Republican national committee, has asked Ed D. Schorr, Republican state chairman, to grant a leave of absence for the balance of the campaign to George Whitehead, director of publicity for the state committee. Waltman wants Whitehead to take charge of publicity for the national committee in 31 western and mid-western states.
